WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Anti-government riots engulfed Warsaw, Gdansk, and other Polish cities Monday as demonstrators supporting the independent union Solidarity took to the streets and police responded with tear gas and fire hoses.

State-run television said the crowds attacked public buildings, smashed windows and burned vehicles. Witnesses said the protesters chanted, "Solidarity! Solidarity!" and screamed "Gestapo!" at police who moved in to disperse them.

Clashes occurred around the Parliament building and Communist Party headquarters. Witnesses said the riots in Warsaw continued late into the night. They reported seeing a crowd commander a bus, block a roadway, and hurl pavement pieces and debris at the police.

Others tore down every red Communist flag they could find. One group marched along carrying a red flag in flames as police circled them in jeeps and hurled tear gas.

Another report said so many people sought refuge from the police in Warsaw's St. John's Cathedral that the priests began admitting only the injured. City medical officials refused to say how many were injured.

The television said several dozen protesters had been detained and would "account for their transgressions under summary procedure, in accordance with martial law."

It blamed the disturbances on "anti-socialist elements" and "imperialist propaganda," and said the military authorities "will not swerve from the course of socialist renewal."

Solidarity's clandestine radio transmitter was apparently jammed and made inaudible by loud music at 9 p.m., (3 p.m. EDT), when it planned a transmission.

Telephone lines were cut in many areas of the capital, including Western news agencies, and Warsaw television reported authorities threatened to reimpose the curfew they lifted a day earlier.

"In the streets of Warsaw and some other cities, demonstrations and incidents have taken place," Warsaw television reported. "People who do not want to understand anything, who have learned nothing, have dragged the youth into the streets to oppose the idea of reconciliation."

Official sources also reported marchers jammed streets in the northern port of Gdansk where Solidarity was formed, but eyewitness accounts were not immediately available. The sources said foreign journalists were banned from the city, suggesting there was violence.

At least 25,000 people converged in Warsaw's historic Castle Square area at 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT) in response to protest plans publicized during Saturday's May Day counter-parade organized by underground Solidarity leaders.

The Communist government warned in nationwide broadcasts Sunday night it would not tolerate more illegal outbreaks, and at least 400 riot police with rifles and clubs backed by water-cannon trucks roamed the square before as the Warsaw protesters gathered in attempts to frighten them off.

British sub sinks Argentine cruiser

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentine cruiser carrying 1,042 seamen sank in the waters of the South Atlantic on Monday, after being fired by a British submarine, and a search was under way for survivors, the Argentine Foreign Ministry said.

Argentine communiqué issued late Monday said 123 men have been rescued and operations "are being carried out" to try and save others from the icy Atlantic.

Cruiser General Belgrano went down from fatal blows inflicted by a hunter-killer submarine Sunday in the conflict over the Falkland Islands, the Argentine government communiqué called the "evil aggression" and a violation of the United Nations Charter. It said the General Belgrano was torpedoed 36 miles outside the 200-mile blockade zone set by the British around the Falklands.

Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff had issued state-earlier saying the cruiser was "presumed sunk" and a plane searching the area southwest of the Falkland spotted "various" lifeboats. It said ships were being for the fog-shrouded area to search for survivors.

The United Nations in New York, U.S. Ambassador J. Kirkpatrick said she had been informed the times feared some 500 sailors were lost.

He told reporters in his office that during Security Council consultations, Secretary-General Javier Perez Cuellar said he had been informed by Argentine Ambassador

Edoardo Roa "that the ship had sunk and they presumed approximately 500 dead."

Britain claimed its helicopters also sank one Argentine patrol vessel and damaged one in an action early Monday north of the Falklands and inside the zone.

The Defense Ministry in London requisitioned the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 to take 3,000 infantrymen to the Falkland Islands war zone, escalating pressure on Argentina, which seized the disputed colony April 2.

Telam, the Argentine government news agency and the only news organization allowed to have reporters on the Falklands, claimed that British air raids on the Goose Green settlement Saturday killed 11 civilians and wounded 17. Virtually all of the Falklands 1,800 residents are of British descent.

Telam said British Sea King helicopters fired "indiscriminately" in attacks on Goose Green, 40 miles west of the capital of Stanley. It claimed that Argentine gunners shot down the helicopters and the British suffered "a great many casualties," but it gave no numbers.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman was asked about the "Team account of civilian casualties and said, "We have no information on this subject."

Argentina rejected the latest effort at diplomatic settlement — a new peace plan offered by Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry. The governing junta in Buenos Aires claims the plan was suggested by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Crew members from Layton Construction Co. work on a cement tower at Cougar stadium. Rapid changes are taking place at the stadium, and many benefits are anticipated with the expansion.

Stadium expansion Growth adds benefits

By RUTH HAMILTON
Senior Reporter

Big things have been happening on the expansion of Cougar stadium, and with construction progressing as rapidly as planned, the project will be completed by Aug. 31.

"Right now we're pouring the cement for the towers," said Bob Patten, project engineer for Layton Construction Co. "Next we'll be working on steel erection for the south grandstand."

The footing beneath the towers is 62 feet square and each footing holds 400 yards of concrete. The reinforcing bars in the footings weigh 250 pounds each.

Another major aspect in the stadium's facelift is the lowering of the football field. "We've dug down and lowered the field eight feet," said Finn Murdoch, BYU's project inspector.

"All the bleachers up to the height of the old stadium are concrete. On the north and south end the risers and steps are a steel folded plate structure."

Murdoch said the facility will be as good as any stadium facility in the country when it's completed.

"Layton Construction Co. is doing a great job. They have completed numerous projects on the BYU campus. Their three major projects have been the Monte L. Bean Life Science Museum, the Harold B. Lee Library addition and the bookstore addition," he said.

"The stadium expansion is a step forward for our football program," said Dick Felt, BYU's assistant head football coach and defensive coordinator.

"BYU has shown good judgment in creating the best possible stadium it could with the budget that it has," Felt said. He added that the enlarged stadium will have a psychological effect on BYU's football players.

"The atmosphere of a full crowd will contribute to our players performing to their maximum ability."

"The stadium expansion has helped us in recruiting for the team. Players want to hear that BYU is expanding their football program. They also want to play in a big stadium before a large audience."

Because of the stadium expansion, Felt believes, BYU can now attract top football teams to Provo. "We hope to bring in non-conference teams," he said.

BYU students escape prison punishment

BYU students arrested in April for making phony drivers' licenses have avoided prosecution by signing diversion agreements with the county.

Twin brothers, Lorenzo and Miller, 20, of Hinckley Hall, and Dallas, 20, of 1605 East, Orem, have entered into agreements with the county which may give them clean release after the completion of their diversion.

The agreement requires the Miller brothers to live with their parents in Provo, Nev., for two years under arrangements are made with authorities.

Miller was decided in the 8th Circuit Court that Pellegrini's probationary will be one year.

The students were charged with falsifying government documents, a second degree felony, in connection with an operation where illegal licenses were being sold for $10 each, according to Sgt. Pete Hansen of the Orem police department.

Hansen said police gathered 67 licenses in a search of the two brothers' dorm room. He described the fake licenses as "absolutely perfect" in detail and indicated police suspect there are others still in circulation.

Police also confiscated photo equipment and other paraphernalia that could have been used in creating the illegal I.D.

Mike Colvin, an investigator for BYU Security/Police, said the licenses had been located before the search.

He estimated an additional five to 10 may still be in circulation.

Hansen said he believes some of the phony licenses are in the hands of high school students. "We have no idea how many are out there floating around," he said.

Colvin said they suspect high school students will use the licenses to purchase alcohol or gamble.

Police say they have confiscated phony licenses from Nevada, Virginia and Alaska, said Hansen.

Reagan accepts summit invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has decided to accept an invitation from Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev for a full-scale summit meeting this fall, administration officials said Monday.

The president still hopes he can with the ailing Soviet leader at a summit conference on the subject in New York next month.

White House press secretary Spokes, and no specific preparations are under way at this time for the summit.

Administration officials, who said in a letter to Brezhnev, reported Austria had been mentioned as a site. The sources asked not to be identified by name.

The White House Press Secretary Spokes and State Department spokesman Dean Fischer took to press there are no specific plans for an autumn meeting, there was no flat denial that Reagan had decided to accept a Brezhnev invitation to meet in a third country.

In the last such summit, Brezhnev and Jimmy Carter conferred in Vienna in 1979 and signed the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, which has not been ratified by the Senate.

Presumably, nuclear issues and other topics, including overall East-West relations and the Middle East, could be on the agenda.

Speakes told reporters that no formal invitation has been extended to Brezhnev for a June meeting. It awaits Brezhnev's acceptance of an invitation to take part in the United Nations conference. Every indication has been that Brezhnev will not take part in the United Nations conference.

Speakes said the administration has received no formal indication of Brezhnev's plans regarding the U.N. meeting.

Reagan allies view bipartisan measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Republican allies said Monday they will try anew to forge a bipartisan compromise on the 1983 budget despite the collapse of talks last week between the chief executive and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

After meeting with Reagan in the Cabinet Room, both Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker and House Minority Leader Robert Michel said they planned to meet further with O'Neill at the Democratic speaker's suggestion and apparently with the president's blessing.

"The president clearly still wants to work out a compromise bipartisan budget," said Baker. "He still wants to avoid a conflict. I think he thinks, and I think that this country deserves better than to make this budget a political football in 1982."

Baker said he planned to talk to O'Neill to see "if there's some possibility that he and I, or our representatives in the House and Senate, can work something out."

Though it had been widely assumed that Reagan would attempt to salvage his 1983 budget by rebuilding the coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats which helped pass his program last year, Michel said "our principal goal is to work with the leadership" first.

However, he also said the Republican leadership was "in touch" with conservative Democrats who gave Reagan his winning margin last year.

Baker and Michel spoke to reporters following Reagan's 60-minute meeting with Republican congressional leaders in the Cabinet Room. After that session, the president conferred with Republican members of the Senate Budget Committee to plan strategy.

Michel quoted O'Neill as having offered to meet with both himself and Baker. "He said, 'Bob, we have to get together on it. I said, 'We're certainly amenable to doing that because that's our job,'" Michel said.

Ballooning costs end Parachute oil project

PARACHUTE, Colo. (AP) — Construction crews were turned away at the gates as they reported for work Monday, less than 12 hours after Exxon USA announced it was shutting down the nation's largest, $4.5-billion project.

Exxon announced in Houston on Sunday that skyrocketing costs were forcing it to abandon the multibillion-dollar Colony Shale Oil project — a move considered likely to transform this area of western Colorado from boom to bust.

By Monday, accountants for Brown & Root Inc., Exxon's prime contractor, were preparing paychecks for about 2,100 workers who will be laid off.

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said 10,000 people may be put out of work when the number of secondary service jobs is included.

In Battlement Mesa, a new town across the Colorado River from Parachute, heavy equipment operator Jerry Bullock said he thinks the area will turn into "the most expensive ghost town in history."

"I'm told we'll get paid later on and then I'm heading out," said Bob Barker, a heavy equipment operator. "At least I'll be sober. A lot of these guys started drinking beer at 7 this morning when they were turned away."

Law enforcement officials met behind closed doors to discuss what possible trouble might develop.

Exxon said that in the last year it had spent $400 million on the Colony project, which was to mine oil-bearing rock and crush and heat it to extract the oil. That figure included housing for about 1,500 people on Battlement Mesa, a town started from scratch a year ago.

Parachute should survive, city officials said, because 1,700 employees of Union Oil Co. of California live in the town.

"This is a very bad harbinger of what the oil shale industry can expect in the future," Lamm said. "People in other companies are going to say, 'If Exxon, the largest corporation in America, can't handle the cost overruns, how can we?'"

Exxon USA President Randall Meyer said the cost of the Colony project had doubled from original estimates, prompting the company to "relinquish" its share of the project.

Robert Larkin, director of Exxon's synthetic fuels department, said the project's price tag rose from $2 billion in 1980 to as much as $6 billion in the latest study.

Y dress standards see more violations with warmer weather

Spring has sprung and with it comes warmer weather and an increase in standards violations at BYU, according to R. Michael Whitaker, chairman of University Standards.

Whitaker said he has become concerned by what he has seen students wearing as they are returning to begin the spring term. "Many of the students have been wearing things and shorts," he said.

Anything that could be termed as "skimpy" is against standards, Whitaker said. "Shorts, halter tops, tank tops are all not allowed in public areas on campus," he said. Such clothing is allowed off campus and in dorm areas.

Students need to be aware that clothing such as that mentioned can't be worn in the Wilkinson Center, Whitaker said.

During the past year, standards have been enforced to a greater degree than ever before, Whitaker said. "We have had more students come through our office over the past year than at any other time," he said.

Students picking up activity cards and stickers at the Marriott Center during this week will be turned away if they are in violation of dress and grooming standards, he said.

The warm weather also brings on an increase in the number of moral violations, Whitaker said. "With the warmer weather people aren't as cooped-up and can go other places to do what they want."

But many violations that had only been related to spring and summer terms are now becoming year-round problems, Whitaker said. Parties where alcohol and drugs are used are one such problem, he said. "We have had several serious problems during the past months (with parties) and as spring begins we have already seen a fair amount related to this."

"The problem fast becoming the most rampant at BYU is the use of marijuana," Whitaker said.

The policy of the university is that if a student uses marijuana or other drugs he is expelled from school.

"After talking to a student who has used marijuana and he tells me he thinks it's no big deal, I always ask myself, 'Where was the bishop who interviewed him to come here?'" he said.

Whitaker said his office is now gearing up to make students aware, and remind them of the commitments they made when they decided to attend BYU.

Students killed in car crash

The bodies of three BYU students from East India who were killed in an auto accident April 24 have been flown back to Singapore.

The students, Sunil Abraham, 21, and his wife, Mary, 24, and Philip Benjamin, 20, were killed in a head-on collision with a blazer in Gold Run, Calif., about 30 miles east of Auburn.

Three others, Dr. and Mrs. Kunjiny Thampachan and their 1-year-old child, Deepa, from San Jose, Calif., were also killed in the accident.

The crash occurred when the blazer, driven by Penelope Lipe, 42, allegedly went out of control on a curve and collided with the Volkswagen the students were in, according to officer Bob Nelson, of the California Highway Patrol.

Nelson said Lipe, who is now at Valley Medical in Santa Clara undergoing treatment for severe spinal cord injuries, has been charged with felony drunken driving. Nelson said she is paralyzed from the neck down.

Abraham was a senior in mechanical engineering and Mrs. Abraham was a senior in chemical engineering. Benjamin was freshman in computer science.

Spring into school life again.

With the beginning of a new term, BYU students have many of the same errands to run. Activity stickers, grade reports and deadlines are always a part of a fresh start, and this term is no exception.

Because practically every other transaction on campus requires the use of a current activity card, students may do well to take care of this first. For new and continuing students, activity cards and stickers are available at the Marriott Center from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today through Thursday. They are also available Friday in the Step-down Lounge, SFLC during the same hours.

Student parking permits are available at the traffic office: Graduate parking, $31; Y Student Parking, $3 and On-Campus Housing Permits, $2. To receive a current activity card, the traffic office requires a current activity card and a state vehicle registration card. New permits, as well as those purchased during fall or winter semesters, are good through Aug. 31.

Y's debate team comes in second in competition

The BYU debate team has placed second in national competition in Reno, Nev.

The University of California at Los Angeles placed first, according to the Cross Examination Debate Association.

Tom Jewell, BYU debate coach, said: "We have been competing with UCLA all year and we exchanged lead position with them several times. I feel it was a close race all year."

The BYU squad includes: Kim Wong, a senior from Provo in political science; Shannan Johnson, a junior from Provo in history; Natalie Morrow, a junior from Dallas in journalism; Kevin Boyer, a freshman from Rupert, Idaho, in speech communication education and Rose Forester, a sophomore from Lehi in English.

Michael Stanley, a freshman from Houston in science fundamentals; Lynne Wilkins, a freshman from Provo in English; Babette Atwood, a sophomore from Fareham, England, in broadcast and film production and Drew Page, a freshman from Salt Lake City in government, also participated.

Others include Cindy Peterson, a freshman from Spokane, Wa., in communications; Pam Hansen, a sophomore from Orem in business fundamental management; Gary Svensen, a sophomore from Orem in English; Theresa Marchant, a sophomore from Provo in political science, and Rena Jones, a freshman from Sparks, Nev., in communications.

Don Black, BYU forensic adviser and instructor in communications, said: "Tom Jewell has helped the squad a great deal. He designed arguments and strategies to help the squad win their debates, and we appreciate the honors Tom and his debaters have brought to BYU."

Interfaith service calls for end of nuclear race

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah clergymen have used an interfaith service to call on The United States and Soviet Union to end their decades-old nuclear arms race.

The Sunday service in Salt Lake City, sponsored by Utah Clergy and Laity Concerned, served as a forum for religious leaders to urge both American and Russian believers to join efforts to freeze the production of nuclear weapons.

The 400-member congregation, meeting at Wasatch Presbyterian Church, were given pro-freeze petitions to circulate in their communities, said spokeswoman Jan Bartlett.

Dr. Chase Peterson, a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said Mormons "are enjoined by the word of God to renounce war and proclaim peace."

Rabbi Eric Silver, of the Congregation Kol Ami, said maintaining a balance of national strength and moral restraint was important to ending the arms race.

Engineering college gets associate deans

DAVID M. WARD

Three new associate deans have been appointed in the College of Engineering Sciences and Technology.

David M. Ward, an associate professor of electrical engineering, Dr. S. Olan Durrant, a professor of civil engineering, and Dr. Dee H. Barker, a professor of chemical engineering, will take office Sept. 1 under Dean L. Douglas Smoot.

Ward will be in charge of the financial operations of the college, including coordination of research grants.

Durrant will work in research and external relations programs to coordinate the college's association with business and industry.

Barker will coordinate all undergraduate and graduate academic programs with work with faculty members on curriculum development.

Barker joined the BYU faculty in 1959 and has worked as a technical specialist for Hercules and as an engineer for DuPont. He earned his bachelor's and doctorate degrees in chemical engineering at the University of Utah.

Durrant joined the faculty in 1970. He has done consulting in the aerospace industry and as a technical specialist on missile systems developed by Hercules, Inc. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in civil engineering at BYU and earned his doctorate at New Mexico State University.

Ward joined the faculty in 1964. He was an assistant dean for five years and an administrative assistant to the chairman of the electrical engineering department for 12 years. He earned his bachelor's degree at Stanford University and has completed graduate studies at Oregon State University, Stanford and the University of Utah.

Prayer day declared

Monday has been declared a National Day of Prayer by President Reagan, who has issued a nation asking Americans to pray for him in "giving thanks to God."

The First Presidency of the LDS Church has commended Reagan's action and provided a statement encouraging "all people everywhere that day — and every day — in grateful, prayerful acknowledgment of God's divine majesty, and goodness."

Reagan said he would kneel before the Lord and thank him for our well-being, his blessing of all mankind, and the blessings of the LDS Church, its members, presidents N. Eldon, Marion G. Romney and Gordon Hinckley, said.

2 chairmen appointed

K. Newell Dayley, an associate professor of music, has been appointed chairman of the BYU music department, and Dr. J. LaVar Bateman, a professor of communications, has been appointed chairman of the department of communications. Both departments are in the College of Fine Arts and Communications.

K. NEWELL DAYLEY

The new chairmen began office Saturday, according to Dr. James A. Mason, dean of the college. They will fill vacancies created when Mason, former chairman of the music department, became dean, and Dr. Brent D. Peterson, former chairman of the communications department, became associate dean.

J. LAVAR BATEMAN

Bateman has taught speech communications at BYU since 1949. He has served on the Honors Program Council, was chairman of the University Speaker's Bureau for 15 years and was chairman of the Forum Assemblies Committee for seven years.

He has a bachelor's degree from BYU and earned his master's and doctorate at the University of Wisconsin.

Dayley joined the BYU faculty in 1970. He is director of the BYU Entertainment Division and of Synthesis, an award-winning jazz and studio ensemble.

He was musical director and conductor of several premiere performances such as "Saturday's Warrior," "The Order is Love" and "Charlie's Monument." He has played with the Utah Symphony Orchestra and soloed on trumpet for broadcasts of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

Dayley received his bachelor's degree from BYU, his master's from the University of Southern California. He is completing doctorate work with the University of Northern Colorado.

Huish to file suit for ballot position

By CLARK H. CARAS
Senior Reporter

Henry "Hank" Huish and the Democratic Party will file a lawsuit Monday against Lt. Gov. David Monson in an attempt to get the candidate's name on November's ballot, according to a lawyer involved in the case.

Huish's lawyer, Scott Daniels, said he would file this morning in Utah's 3rd District Court. The suit will argue Huish's right to file late so the Democrat will be included on the ballot for Utah's new third Congressional seat.

The controversy began when Huish failed to appear in person and file his candidacy by the April 26 deadline. Huish said he thought he could file by mail and had done so before he left the state to begin fundraising for his campaign.

Monson has said the law requires applicants to file in person, and he indicated Huish's mail filing had never reached his office. Monson could not be reached for updated comment on the lawsuit.

"Huish did file something that was a statement of candidacy, and that is good enough. And the court has the power to allow a late filing," Daniels said.

Deputy Lt. Gov. Brad Hainsworth said the law is very specific in stating that a candidate for an office involving multiple counties must file in person.

If the "proper court" tells them to allow Huish's name on the ballot as the Democratic candidate, however, then it will be put on, Hainsworth said.

He said the state attorney general's office will handle the case. If the court rules in favor of Huish, Hainsworth said, it will be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

After being denied the right to file late, Hainsworth said, Huish was left with two choices: to sue the lieutenant governor or file as an independent candidate. He said if Huish files as an independent, his campaign will be "ten times as hard."

Daniels said he does not believe the case will be decided soon, and a spokesman for Huish's campaign said he will file as an independent, "just in case." Then if Huish wins the lawsuit, he will withdraw and run as a Democrat.

Track team loses meet to Wildcats

Despite outstanding performances in the shot put and 1,500-meter run, BYU's track team lost its first dual match of the season to a fleet-footed University of Arizona team Saturday at Tucson's Rincon Vista Track.

Arizona runners cleaned up in the 100-, 200- and 400-meter dash by capturing all three places in each event. The Wildcats also left the Cougars behind in both the 400-meter and 1,600-meter relays, upping their season dual-meet record to 6-2.

"I was a little disappointed. A couple of our players didn't perform well," said coach Clarence Robison.

However, the Cougars gave Arizona a taste of its own medicine with Goran Svensson, Vic Petruschin and Lars Henriksson finishing one-two-three in the shot put. Svensson also won the discus with a toss of 156 feet 6 1/2 inches and Petruschin finished second with a throw of 171 feet 1 inch.

The 1,500-meter run was all Cougar blue and white as Phil Peterson led a crowd of BYU runners with a time of 3:48.07. Jay Woods (3:48.48), Gary Morton (3:49.16), and Blaine Anderson (3:49.38) rounded out the sweep for BYU in the event.

The Cougars will be in El Paso, Texas, today through Saturday for the WAC track and field championships.

Playoff rivalries heat up

The Boston Celtics and the Philadelphia 76ers will be looking to renew their playoff rivalry Wednesday by winning one more game each in their respective series with the Washington Bullets and the Milwaukee Bucks.

In Sunday's NBA action, the Los Angeles Lakers wrapped up their series with the Phoenix Suns with a 112-107 victory over the Suns, completing a four-game sweep.

The San Antonio Spurs also took a three-to-one advantage Sunday in their series with the Seattle SuperSonics by winning, 115-113.

The Celtics beat Washington, 108-99, and the 76ers beat the Bucks 100-93 in their Sunday matchups.

Look out Vince Evans, here comes McMahon!

McMahon, considered by many to be the quarterback ever to come out of BYU, is away to the windy city as the Chicago Bears' first pick.

McMahon set 55 NCAA records constantly making news. Continuing the trend, he was the fifth player to be taken in the draft, making him the first player in the history of BYU to go that high.

McMahon has been known, and sometimes criticized, for his air of self-assuredness. That confidence was on display when he was drafted Wednesday, where he indicated he did not plan to play second string to Chicago's present quarterback, Vince Evans.

"I have no feelings toward Vince Evans. I don't hate him, and I don't know about his confidence. He is a terrific one game and the next game he's a different person," McMahon said.

McMahon's selection of which team McMahon would go to was one of the most talked about subjects in Utah.

Sportswriters and fans guessed he might go to Baltimore.

McMahon said, "I'm glad I'm not going to be a part of that (Baltimore) organization." He said Baltimore's front office has been messed up for several years.

When McMahon was asked how he felt about the draft, he said, "In my opinion, there was no quarterback better than me this year in the draft."

Another BYU player, Danny Plater, went to the Denver Broncos in the fourth round.

Several BYU players declared themselves free agents. Kyle Whittingham, along with Steve and Mark Brady, will go to Denver. Calvin Close will go to New Orleans. Brad Aanae to the Philadelphia Eagles and Junior Fillaga to the Los Angeles Rams. Steve Rogers is negotiating with several teams, according to the BYU football office.

McMahon tossed the football to a teammate in the Cougar's game against San Diego State. Picked fifth in the first round of the draft by the Chicago Bears, McMahon will make his home in the windy city. Not known for his shyness, McMahon told reporters, "In my opinion, there was no quarterback better than this year in the draft."

Members of the BYU Cappella Choir prepare for a pre-tour performance for local audiences. The concert, at 8 p.m. Thursday, will be the choir's last performance before leaving on a three-week tour of Israel and Greece.

Israeli tour scheduled for Y choir

A series of performances with the Israeli Chamber Orchestra will highlight an upcoming three-week tour of Israel and Greece by the BYU A Cappella Choir, directed by Dr. Ralph Woodward.

The choir will perform several works prepared especially for the concert during a free pre-tour concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

"Promise of Ezekiel," a new work for chorus and orchestra by BYU faculty member Merrill Bradshaw, will be performed along with Vaughn-Williams' "Fos Camp" with violin David Dalton, and Vivaldi's "Lauda Jerusalem," featuring vocal soloists Maran Matich and Rebecca Wilcox.

The choir will also perform two works by Bach. Woodward will be directing his eighth international tour with the 60-voice ensemble.

The upcoming tour is largely the result of efforts by several Israeli choral musicians, including Michael Shani, who attended several concerts by the choir during its previous tour of Israel in 1978.

"We have had many fine choirs tour Israel both before and since that time," says Shani, "but we remember the very special performances of this choir as being quite different from anything we have experienced."

Israeli music reviewers were equally impressed. "This week we also had the performances of Claudio Abbado and Itzhak Perlman, and the BYU choir has one thing in common with them: the ability to express an inner musical message full of genuine sincerity," wrote critic Hanoch Ron, who was also instrumental in arranging the upcoming tour.

"The richness and warmth of the singing and the musicianship of the conductor quite overwhelmed us," Shani added.

A graduate from the Music Teachers College of Tel Aviv, Shani came to BYU in 1969 for a semester of study with Woodward and plans to return to work with Woodward on completing a master's degree in choral conducting at BYU.

Shani, Ron and several other prominent Israeli choral musicians acted as liaisons in setting up the choir's performances in Israel with the Israeli Chamber Orchestra.

"There is today a real renaissance of choral music in Israel," says Shani. "Although 10 years ago there were maybe 50 choirs in the country, today there are nearly 300, and there is much need for good models of singing."

Woodward will return to Israel for another month following the tour to conduct the Israeli National Choral Ensemble as well as conduct seminars and workshops for Israeli choral conductors.

In addition to the concerts in Israel, the choir members will also spend eight days performing in Greece, where they will be the first American choir to perform in the historic Herod Atticus amphitheater at the foot of the Acropolis.

with producer Bob Williams, a BYU graduate.

Schroeder recently finished "One Dark Night," a horror film for Com-Utah Pictures, which will be released in Utah next month.

San Francisco

Schroeder left BYU when he was a junior to observe production management with a film company in San Francisco and later returned to Provo to be hired by BYU to film nine BYU and LDS Church films. These included "Blind Love," "The Emmett Smith Story," and "Lilies Grow Wild." He became production manager of BYU's motion picture studio and then left on a 1977 Western states tour as co-producer of James Arrington's "Here's Brother Brigham."

Schroeder left BYU to do freelance work in 1979.

Mormon Tabernacle Choir to tour

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Tabernacle Choir will leave in June for its 12th international tour, performing 10 concerts in eight European cities.

The 325-voice choir will leave for Europe on June 5 and will return to Salt Lake City on June 21. For the first time, the choir will give concerts in Norway, Finland and Sweden.

The choir is scheduled to sing in Bergen and Oslo, Norway; Stockholm, Sweden; Helsinki, Finland; Copenhagen and Aalborg, Denmark; and Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Film maker prefers Utah over big cities

By MOLLY CHRISTIE
Asst. Entertainment Editor

A former BYU communications student, who has since become a film maker, prefers Utah over the big city and plans on filming four future productions in Utah, one of which will be shot in the Provo-Orem area beginning next spring.

Michael Schroeder, 29, makes films in Los Angeles, but lives in Orem with his wife Kamela and three children.

First film

Schroeder said his company, "Outlaw Productions Inc.," will shoot its first film in a Provo-area high school. It is called "Fight in the Shade" and Schroeder described it as the "ultimate feel-good movie."

The script, which Schroeder wrote, is based on a true story dealing with the integrity surrounding a high school football team. Todd Christensen, former BYU football star now with the Oakland Raiders, will be in the cast as an opposing quarterback. Reed Smoot, another Utah film maker and Oscar-winner, will probably direct the film, Schroeder said.

The other three films are: "Destroying Angel," a story of one man's war against the underworld of pornography, which will be filmed in Salt Lake City; "Eye of the Beholder," a horror story; and "Roadtrip," about a cross-country chase in Canada. "We can make Utah look like Canada," Schroeder said.

Osmond production
Schroeder is presently involved with an Osmond production, "Footsteps," which will begin filming in Ashland, Ore., next week. He will direct as well as co-produce the film.

Symphony Hall to sweet with 'big band' sounds

One of the world's top big bands will be filling Symphony Hall in Salt Lake City on Friday at 8 p.m.

The famous Les Brown and the Band of Renown, a 17-member band led by Brown, will perform music in the styles of such greats as Benny Goodman, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Art Shaw, Duke Ellington, Charlie Barnet, Bob Crosby and Glenn Miller.

Other guest artists will be featured in the performance, including vocalists Jo Ann Greer and Clyde "Stumpy" Brown.

Brown and his band have worked with Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Dean Martin, Steve Allen, Doris Day, Nancy Wilson, Johnny Mercer and a number of others.

Brown gained his formal musical training at the Conservatory of Music and the New York City Academy, where he graduated class valedictorian — despite taking time out to organize orchestras that played, in addition to the band, his own compositions and arrangements.

Brown went on to Duke University, where he established his first band, the Duke Blue Devils. He spent a brief time on saxophone in the band after the Angels disbanded in 1937, he organized his now famous and popular Band of Renown. Tickets are on sale at the Utah Symphony office in Symphony Hall.

Y performers get awards

A number of student performers were honored at the 1982-83 Pardoe and Margetts Theater seasons were announced last week during the annual awards assembly sponsored by the department of theater and cinematic arts.

Scott Wilkinson was named best actor for his performances in "An Enemy of the People" and "Wings," and Christine Carter received recognition as best actress for her work in "King Lear." Named best supporting actor was Rick Macy for "Sunshine Boys" and "King Lear." Tenina Hicks was named best supporting actress for her performance in "Watch on the Rhine." David Spencer received best character actor honors for his work in "King Lear," while April Black received the best character actress award for "Watch on the Rhine."

Bruce Newbold and Kathryn Laycock Whitehead were named most promising actor and actress. Cash awards went to Laura Berry for the Harold I. and Betty K. Hansen Educational Theater Award, and Scott and Paula Eckern for the Kathryn B. and T. Earl Pardoe Awards of Excellence. Rick Rinaldi and Kim Jensen also received cash prizes as best Mask Club actor and actress.

Love Rock 'n' Roll' No. 1 for Joan Jett

Tuesday, May 4, 1982 The Universe Page 7

Joan Jett and her group the Blackhearts consists of Ryan, Lee Crystal, Jett and Ricky Byrd. The group's debut single "I Love Rock 'n' Roll" has topped the record charts for seven consecutive weeks at No. 1. The record's success comes after being turned down by several record companies.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Joan Jett was eating in a Japanese restaurant, answering interview questions when her manager Kenny Kama came in to tell her that her "I Love Rock 'n' Roll" had gone to No. 1 in the singles charts. It's her 16th record.

realize it yet," she said. "No. 1 in the country!"

That was seven weeks ago, and the song is still holding at the No. 1 position on the singles charts across the country. Her follow-up single, "Crimson and Clover," is also climbing up on the national charts as well.

"It blows me away to think. Me! Do you realize who I was going up against — the J. Giles Band, Stevie Wonder, Journey."

Jett and Laguna recall the turn-downs she got before Neil Bogart signed her to Boardwalk Records and put out the "I Love Rock 'n' Roll" album by Joan Jett and the Blackhearts.

She says: "In a certain way I've gotten a little bit of the last laugh. Epic records told me due to their high standards they were unable to sign a person with a voice like mine. I was bitter."

Jett, 24, grew up in Rockville, Md. Her father's insurance employer transferred him to Southern California in 1975. She had listened to early 1970s British glitter rock music and started going to Hollywood to listen to live music, wanting to get into the business. "I was very determined," she says.

Jett got into an all-girl band, the Runaways, which Mercury signed in 1977, putting out the first of five albums.

Their biggest acclaim was in Japan. "We had 2,000 kids meet us at the airport. I got my hair ripped and clothes torn. That was the first time I knew what it felt like to be a mini-Beatle. I think an all-girl band playing sweaty rock 'n' roll was really revolutionary for them."

In America, the Runaways weren't so popular. "I think it was because of our jailbait image," Jett says. "Nobody was going to take us seriously."

"In January 1979 we had a meeting. It was time to pack it in. It was very depressing. We'd been dropped by the record company and we were getting bad press."

Jett made essentially a solo album afterward, "Joan Jett," for Arista in Germany. After turn-downs from major U.S. labels, Boardwalk re-issued it as "Bad Reputation" in 1981. Laguna says, "All she wanted to do was run a road show. All I wanted to do was dump the responsibility. But I knew she'd get more money on the road if she had a record out."

But Laguna didn't dump the responsibility. He says that Joan Jett's making a success became a cause for him. "We were fighting an entire industry that thought she was a joke. They wouldn't acknowledge she was a throwback to pure rock 'n' roll."

Jett says, "I feel like I've paid a lot of dues. I don't feel like this is luck. I do really feel like I deserve it. I did work hard and take a lot of abuse."

"I love to sweat," she says. "If I come off stage with my hair dry, I think I haven't done anything. If I fling my hair and see drops of water go up to the ceiling lights, that's what rock 'n' roll means almost."

PEOPLE

Compiled from THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two authors of a study of radical journalist Louise Bryant have filed a $22.75 million lawsuit charging that actor-director Warren Beatty failed to keep promises he made for the use of the manuscript in the movie "Reds."

Beatty starred in and directed "Reds," about Bryant and her husband, journalist John Reed, who chronicled the Soviet Revolution.

Beatty is said to have promised additional compensation if the movie were made and promised to help find a publisher for the manuscript.

Beatty denies the allegations and will contest, said his attorney, Gerald Corsini.

David Soul, most popularly known for his role as Hutch in the TV cop series "Starsky and Hutch," will return to TV in a new NBC series "Casablanca," based on the 1940s movie. Soul will play the role of Rick, originally played by Humphrey Bogart.

Jack Lemmon, better known for light comedies than political activism, says he wouldn't have appeared in the controversial film "Missing" if he thought it were "un-American."

He added: "What people care about is the search, and that's what appealed to me as an actor. If I thought it were un-American, I wouldn't have done it, just as I wouldn't do a picture that had excessive sex or violence."

Lemmon said he knew from the beginning that "Missing" would be controversial, not only because of the subject matter but since the film maker was Costa-Gavras, whose films deal with politically explosive subjects.

"Missing," which portrays the U.S. Embassy in Chile as indifferent to the fate of Charles Hor-man, opened in Washington. The State Department issued a written statement afterward denying U.S. complicity in the death and saying that it undertook intensive and comprehensive efforts to find Horman as soon as it learned he was missing.

Eubie Blake, the 99-year-old songwriter and piano player, was given the first video disc of the Broadway musical "Eubie!" by the chairman of RCA records.

The musical is made up of songs Blake wrote, in many cases for Broadway musicals of the 1920s.

Guatemala: misunderstood, misreported

BY DAVID B. TIMMINS
Retired U.S. Foreign Service Officer

Editor's note: On March 24, two weeks after a national election that provoked accusations of fraud, justice ministry officers overthrew Guatemala's right-wing government and its President Gen. Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia.

Noted to bend the wire ruling justice was retired Gen. Efraim Rios Montt, who told reporters that Garcia and the president-elect Angel Arango Guzman have imposed a government that does not represent the people. Montt vowed to change Guatemala's image.

The following is the first of a two-part series, written for The Daily Universe by a retired U.S. Foreign Service officer residing in Guatemala, who details some of the misunderstandings about Guatemala that have been reported by the press.

Guatemala has a bad press. The recent government of President Romeo Lucas Garcia has been attacked as a "bloody military dictatorship." Without wishing to appear an apologist for the Lucas government, there is more considerably later than most cadets. As president, Lucas did not forget his remote rural origin or his Kekchi friends.

In criticizing his shortcomings, the international press has failed to give him credit for some of the most extensive social programs in Guatemalan history. Under his leadership more public land has been distributed than in any previous period of national history.

There have been more than 100,000 beneficiaries of this program, more than twice the number in El Salvador, which has been praised for its forced land-distribution program.

And all Guatemalan holders have clear title, whereas it has been reported that no more than a dozen or so clear titles have been distributed in Salvador. Moreover, Guatemala has not been doctrinaire with regard to the form of land ownership.

Not repressive

Far from the image of the repressive, fascist government it is reported to be, the Lucas administration has fostered agrarian cooperatives and has fostered collectives in areas where the Instituto Nacional de Transformación Agraria (INTA) has found a preference for them. In other areas, individual land titles have been given.

Lucas initiated construction of more than 300 rural schools, more than 250 rural health centers, 33 regional hospitals, and gave a massive push to a national literacy program that reportedly gave minimum reading and writing skills to more than 100,000 people during its 18-month campaign.

There has been corruption and violence, however. These have without exception been part of the Guatemalan tradition. When he arrived toward the end of the Carter administration, U.S. Ambassador Frank Ortiz was under instructions to do his best to improve Guatemala's human rights record. And, in fact, he did. Embassy best estimates of wanton killings dropped from some 90 per month in July 1979 to less than 10 a month by the end of the year.

Not enough

Knowledgeable individuals attributed this sharp reduction to the ambassador's quiet advocacy with General Lucas and other senior government officials. But it was not enough. The Carter "human rights" insisted on a violence level of zero.

A couple of deputy assistant secretaries of state were sent to Guatemala under the impression that a bit of table pounding could improve on the ambassador's record.

The Lucas administration took umbrage that its efforts were unappreciated and that instead of improved relations it was reaping only criticism and negative world press attention.

Worse, the ambassador was rewarded by being removed, leaving the country without U.S. ambassadorial representation for more than a year — a critical year in the deteriorating political environment of Central America.

People on the spot are not sure what happened next — though outside newsmen have no doubts after spending three or four days here. There are two possibilities, or perhaps both events occurred simultaneously.

Some believe that the insurgents took heart from the discrediting of the Lucas government, a world press biased in their favor, and the deterioration in Salvador and Nicaragua, and sharply stepped up the level of violence.

Student addresses must have approval

The BYU Housing Office is investigating student addresses and plans to crack down on students not living in BYU-approved housing, according to John Pace, BYU Residential housing manager.

"We are increasing activity in enforcing that requirement," Pace said. "We're certainly spending more time on it than ever before."

Students not living in BYU-approved housing could eventually have a hold placed on their records until they comply, Pace said.

As part of the registration process, students are required to give a BYU-approved address each semester and term.

"The approved housing is essential," Pace said. "There's no other way to enforce the living standards."

Pace also said the housing requirement gives the school a great deal of influence with the apartment building owners. Without approved housing, conditions would be a lot worse in apartments, both physically and morally, he said.

"The whole purpose is to the student's advantage," Pace said. Each facility that receives BYU approval is inspected to make sure it meets minimum specifications.

The specifications are outlined in the off-campus housing pamphlet. Requirements such as a minimum of one bathroom for every six people and a study area for each person must be met.

Pace said the pamphlet is being revised to include even more restrictions for the students' benefit. "We've implemented a new requirement for smoke alarms," he said.

There are not very many apartment buildings in the area without BYU approval.

It's to the apartment owner's advantage to be BYU-approved, he said.

"It certainly is if he wants to rent to BYU students since they are the major source of renters in this area," Pace said.

Having a hard time thinking of that right Mother's Day gift?

How about the traditional box of Russell Stover chocolates? Or, you might want to consider our 16 piece set of Corelle Livingware specially featured at $24.50.

Maybe mom would like some new placements or a fancy tablecloth. A small appliance for the kitchen is always a nice gift.

Or for the mom on the go, Active Sportswear from the Coed shop or a Dance Aerobics record from the Music Dept.!

Perfume from the Coed Boutique is always just right. And of course, you can't forget the most important — a personally signed card from our wide selection just for Mom.
